

New chassis

Posted by reflexr - 21 Nov 2016 20:26

I am starting a build on a new chassis after Rafi and Rob confirmed what I feared. The 42 is cracked and bent in a way that makes setup a compromise. I have an 84 that is straight as an arrow, and has no sunroof. Keeping the 42 together just in case we can't finish the chassis prep(cage, dash, bodywork) in time for the new season. I should have my provisional license after chuckwallah, and will run the 42 if we have to. The plan is to get the chassis ready to just swap our front and rear suspension and drivetrain(R2 will do the short 5th conversion and go through the gearbox and lsd), from the 42. It's all sorted, so that's what we're gonna do! Wish us luck. Tim, if you have any customers that need early interior bits, let me know. It's brown, and in pretty good shape, except for the leather seats.

=====

Re: New chassis

Posted by tcomeau - 26 Nov 2016 08:31

Well, bummer. Let the class know what you need.

TC

=====