

Aftermarket valance

Posted by cbuzzetti - 10 May 2016 19:31

I bought an aftermarket front valance from Automotion. It looked to be the best reproduction and they have a good reputation.

I paid about $380 when it was on sale, currently listed at $414.

It took 5 weeks to get it since they don't actually stock this item.

Quality looks good and appears to be a very close replica.

The mounting holes are NOT pre drilled but there are reliefs where they should be.

www.automotion.com/front-spoiler-valance...rsche-1983-1989.html

It will be a couple of weeks before I get a chance to mount it.

It does come folded on both ends to fit in the box. A couple of hours in the sun and it popped back into the correct shape.

Re: Aftermarket valance

Posted by cbuzzetti - 10 May 2016 19:33

I will try to post a couple of pics.

That didn't work. I will try again.

Re: Aftermarket valance

Posted by dpRacing Dan - 11 May 2016 13:43

Very cool Charlie. Thanks for posting this. A few folks out here in the midwest are starting to buy this as well.
