

Miller Paddock - AKA Camp 944

Posted by joepaluch - 07 Apr 2008 09:24

Chuck,

This is partially directed to you being the "Host"; Regional director...

I was talking with some Az guys about making the trip to Miller. We will be arriving Thursday evening for most of us and we all want to pit in the same area.

We want to continue our tradition of Camp 944 where we all hang out together and I would guess that all the 944 guys from all the regions would like to pit in the same area. Some of them will have motorhomes, Toy hauler trailers, as well as closed/open trailers. I believe Jon Ariano reserved some electrical hook-up as well.

So my question is this. What is the plan for camp 944? I can only assume there will be a large crowd of all cars at Miller and I wonder if we will have some designated space for the 944 camp and how it may be divided. Most of us have never been there so we have no idea of how the paddock is laid out.

=====

Re:Miller Paddock - AKA Camp 944

Posted by SvoChuck - 07 Apr 2008 09:32

Ok I will make sure we have a large area reserved just for us .

Todd, where do you recommend we set up camp ?

I will need to know how many RV's and how many campers .

=====

Re:Miller Paddock - AKA Camp 944

Posted by joepaluch - 07 Apr 2008 21:33

Chuck I have a list of my drivers attending. I will put on the list who is bringing what in terms of cars trucks/RV etc.

=====

Re:Miller Paddock - AKA Camp 944

Posted by Utah944 - 08 Apr 2008 08:22

That depends.....

I think we should get together and rent some garage space in the day garages. It $75 per day per garage (two car door) or $225 for the weekend. The garage is not for cars but a place to hang out and not be on the black top. We can set up the coolers and fans and have a good spot to hang out. If we do that we should then stake out space near our garage. (note the garage will be where the chalk talk will occur and Aaron will walk us through how he ran a 3:33 in the rain).

I am more than willing to show up as soon as they open the paddock to get space.

With this many people we should put the trailers else where. The paddock at miller is HUGE.

=====

Re:Miller Paddock - AKA Camp 944

Posted by joepaluch - 08 Apr 2008 10:48

Az 944 Drivers

1. Joe Paluch - Truck & Open Trailer - Camping
2. Jim Foxx - 40ft RV & 2 Car Enclosed - Camping
3. Jon Ariano - RV & Open Trailer - Camping
4. Glenn Gormley - Truck & 36ft RV/car hauler - camping
5. Hal Dunn - 35ft RV & Open Trailer - Camping
6. Ciff Orbach - Truck & Flat tow - ???
7. Vince Vaccaro - Truck & open Trailer - ???
8. Norm Hamden - ??? - Camping
9. Jeff Wojnar - ???

10.

I will add more drivers as I figure out what they are bringing up there.

Todd where would the RV's be in relation to the garages? Most all of us Az guys are used to pitting out the sun under our own shade. I have 2 10x10 shade tents and most racers have one or share.

=====

Re:Miller Paddock - AKA Camp 944

Posted by SvoChuck - 08 Apr 2008 16:01

we will need a pit boss to be in charge of this so it gets done right . I can have NASA give us some space ahead of time. Then Todd can go out and make sure it stays ours.

So who wants to be the pit boss . This will require a firm but friendly hand...

=====